

9:00 – 10:00

NBS FOR ADAPTATION TO CLIMATE CHANGE

The goal of this event is to provide a space for the exchange of experiences, offering information on advances and lessons learned that promote cooperation between peers and the strategic and sustainable implementation of nature-based solutions (NbS).

MODERATOR

Elsa Velasco – Fundación Internacional para Iberoamérica de Administración y Políticas Públicas

SPEAKERS

- Nora Páez – Ministry of Environment and Sustainable Development of Paraguay
- Miguel Ángel Zerón Cid – Secretariat of Environment and Natural Resources of Mexico
- Maribel Pinto – Ministry of Environment of Panama
- Luis Alberto Guerra – Ministry of Environment and Sustainable Development of Colombia

11:00 – 12:30

MEGA MARINE PROTECTED AREAS AS A STRATEGY TO COMBAT CLIMATE CHANGE AND PROMOTE THE SUSTAINABLE USE OF RESOURCES

In this event, it is expected to analyze the work of establishing Mega Marine Protected Areas and the benefits that the work between networks of Marine Protected Areas has been generating for the ecosystems and communities that depend on them.

José Julio Casas – Ministerio de Ambiente de Panamá

SPEAKERS

- Mario Gómez – Fundación Betadiversidad
- Puri Canals – Proyecto Ocean Governance
- Max Bello – Mission Blu

13:00– 14:30

CHANGES IN NATURAL PATTERNS OF MARINE ORGANISMS DUE TO THE EFFECT OF CLIMATE CHANGE

The changing conditions of the ocean worldwide are triggering variations in the characteristics of marine and coastal ecosystems that put the natural balance of coastal species and communities at risk. Different international scientists will present how these changes are occurring and how they are affecting the natural patterns of different organisms and the consequences that this produces on the different actors in the coastal marine zone.

MODERATOR Daniel Suman

SPEAKERS

- Sonia Español – Fundación MERI
- Patricia Zurita – Conservación Internacional

DAY 1

Monday, december 4th 2023
Expocity, Dubai

Stand B3-31

14:30 - 16:00

EXPANDING THE AMBITION OF NATIONALLY DETERMINED CONTRIBUTIONS (NDC) AT COP 28

The event 'Raising the Ambition of Nationally Determined Contributions (NDCs)' provides a unique platform to delve into the relevance and challenges related to increasing the ambition of Nationally Determined Contributions in the fight against climate change. Recognizing the crucial importance of this topic on the global stage, the event will bring together leading experts and leaders in the field of climate change to discuss effective strategies and practical solutions that enable elevating ambition in NDCs.

MODERATOR PNUD

SPEAKERS

- Ligia Castro - Ministry of Environment of Panama
- Natalie Pareja - Ministry of Environment of Uruguay
- Jenny Mager - Ministry of Environment of Chile
- Alan Ramírez - Consejo Nacional para el Cambio Climático de República Dominicana

16:00 - 17:30

NATURE BASED SOLUTIONS

Faced with the challenges of climate change, society needs to adapt. Coastal cities like Panama and Miami are exceptionally vulnerable to climate change, particularly due to their coastal relationship. Nature-based Solutions (also known as "green infrastructure") offer another option for coastal protection and erosion caused by sea level rise. These incorporate natural elements in protection, producing some ecosystem benefits along with their protective function of the coast.

SPEAKERS

- Daniel Suman - Faculty of Marine Sciences, University of Miami
- Jessica Owley - Faculty of Law, University of Miami
- Vanessa Forbes Pateman - PhD Candidate in Political and Environmental Sciences

9:30 – 11:00

ADVANCES IN ADAPTATION AND ITS LINK WITH GLOBAL GOALS

An analysis of the global adaptation goal is essential to guarantee effective adaptation to climate change in Latin America and the Caribbean. Only through effective regional cooperation and the implementation of appropriate policies and strategies will we be able to face the challenges ahead and ensure a sustainable future for generations to come.

MODERATOR Rosa Montañez – Fundación Natura

SPEAKERS

- Agustín Carrizosa – Paraguay
- Katherine Martinez – Ministry of Environment of Panama
- Wilfredo Arrugui Valdes – MINAG

13:00 – 14:30

SKILLS FOR TOMORROW: PREPARING FOR A JUST AND EQUITABLE TRANSITION

Panama, the Dominican Republic, Ecuador, and Chile seek to share their experiences regarding projects, programs, and initiatives led in the strengthening of capacities. Taking into account the six elements of Climate Empowerment Action and the gender perspective, these initiatives aim to develop skills and knowledge across various sectors of society to achieve a just transition.

MODERATOR Lorena Lomas – ONU Mujeres América Latina y el Caribe

SPEAKERS

- Carol Simon – Ministry of Environment of Panama
- Massiel Cairo – National Climate Change Council of the Dominican Republic
- Karina Salinas – Ministry of the Environment, Water, and Ecological Transition of Ecuador
- Lorena Pérez – Division of Environment, Climate Change and Oceans of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of Chile

14:30 – 16:00

EASTERN TROPICAL PACIFIC MARINE CORRIDOR (CMAR) AS A STRATEGY THAT CONNECTS THE PROTECTION AND CONSERVATION OF RESOURCES WITH THEIR DIFFERENT USERS

The CMAR is a voluntary initiative between Ecuador, Costa Rica, Colombia and Panama, which seeks the Conservation, Protection and Sustainable Use of marine resources among the Marine Protected Areas that make it up and that represent its core areas. The corridor seeks to ensure the health of these ecosystems based on joint government work and taking advantage of the support of external partners. At this event, the Ministers of the Environment of the four member countries will discuss the strategies designed together to strengthen the CMAR and ensure the health of the region through the care of the highly migratory species that connect this strip of the Eastern Tropical Pacific and the ecosystems where they develop.

11:00 – 12:30

EFFECT OF CLIMATE CHANGE ON ISLAND COMMUNITIES: THE EXAMPLE OF SUBDUG CARTÍ IN GUNA YALA, PANAMA

The rise in sea level, produced by global warming, is generating physical and chemical changes that not only affect coastal marine biodiversity, but is also impacting anthropogenic activities and coastal communities. The Community of Cartí Subdug is an island in the indigenous region of Guna Yala, which will be moved by this phenomenon, so this event is expected to show the social, cultural and religious effects that this transfer will generate. Researchers from the Smithsonian Tropical Research Institute, the University of Miami and the Ministry of the Environment of Panama will analyze the repercussions of this.

MODERATOR Maribel Pinto – Ministry of Environment of Panama

SPEAKERS

13:00 - 14:30

GHG MANAGEMENT IN MUNICIPALITIES AND MEASURES FOR MITIGATION. MUNICIPAL COMMITMENT IN GHG MANAGEMENT

Facilitate the exchange of successful experiences among different municipalities in managing their GHGs and highlight innovative strategies that have proven to reduce their emissions.

MODERATOR Juan Manuel Lucero - Ministry of Environment of Panama

SPEAKERS

- Crisolo Isarama - Asociación de Municipios de los Pueblos Indígenas
- Pacto Global de Alcaldes
- Gonzalo Durán - Chile

14:30 - 16:00

IMPACTS OF SEA LEVEL RISE: A CROSS-CUTTING VISION TOWARDS ADAPTATION

In this space, the aim is to showcase global initiatives, experiences, and resources that are part of measures being implemented for adaptation planning to the effects of climate change in the oceans. This involves highlighting actions taken from various parts of the world, identifying successful strategies and key tools used in ocean management in the context of climate change, and promoting international collaboration and coordination of efforts. It also involves addressing challenges effectively and planning a more resilient future for our marine ecosystems and the communities that depend on them.

9:30- 11:00

THE ROLE OF STRATEGIC PARTNERS IN FINANCING REGIONAL INITIATIVES FOR THE PROTECTION AND CONSERVATION OF MARINE RESOURCES

The international effort to ensure the protection and conservation of marine and coastal resources demands a significant investment, not only economically but also in terms of human resources, equipment, training, and support. This is something that is not always a priority for countries in the Tropical Eastern Pacific. Therefore, it is essential to have strategic partners who can assist these countries in establishing alliances to design strategies for the conservation of these resources, which generate economic income and promote environmental and social stability. This event will showcase, through representatives from various organizations, the benefits that have been generated through the support and follow-up provided at both national and international levels.

MODERATOR Jair Urriola

11:00- 12:30

GREENHOUSE GAS MANAGEMENT IN MUNICIPALITIES AND MEASURES FOR MITIGATION

Municipalities are living laboratories where concrete policies and practices can have a significant impact. This is where decisions are made regarding public transportation, waste management, urban planning, and many other areas that influence greenhouse gas emissions. Therefore, it is essential for municipalities to take responsibility for reducing their emissions and promoting environmental sustainability.

Hence, in many countries in the region, efforts have been made to define National Greenhouse Gas Management Programs that adopt standardized methodologies to quantify and report municipal-level greenhouse gas emissions systematically.
